What is Ch'nook?

Ch'nook Indigenous Business Education was established to address the needs of sustainable economic development in Aboriginal communities throughout BC. Ch'nook also recognizes the importance of celebrating the accomplishments of existing successful Aboriginal business leaders, organizations, and current students pursuing business education. Working with community, business, and academic partners, Ch'nook promotes business as a viable career choice for Aboriginal students and supports them in achieving their education in management and business.

Ch'nook Cousins Regional Gathering

On March 30th, Ch'nook will be hosting a Regional Gathering for Aboriginal youth in high school who are interested in or would like to learn more about a future in business. The workshop is hosted by Ch'nook and Thompson Rivers University and will take place at Thompson Rivers University's Kamloops Campus between 9am and 2pm. Lunch & transportation costs will be covered.

The purpose of the day is to introduce students to the many opportunities open to them if they pursue an education in business or management. We will be providing information on where students can study business at a post-secondary level, what areas of study are available, and what support students can seek while attending college or university. Current Aboriginal business students will also be in attendance to answer questions and share their personal stories of how they came to study business.

If you have any questions please visit the Ch'nook website www.chnook.org or contact the Ch'nook office at 604.822.0988 or info@ch-nook.ubc.ca
